If the Client opens a position in CFDs on stocks, their Account should be funded with at least twice the funds that are blocked as collateral for the transaction. Information on the current margin rates is available on the website www.swissmain.com.

5.2. By signing this Agreement, the Client agrees that all trade profits and losses shall be recorded in their Account.

5.5. Under this Agreement, the Client agrees to the price levels of the transactions upon closing the positions. The Client shall be informed about their closed positions by means of an instant notification via the electronic trading platform that gives them access to their account balance or by an automatically generated email to the Client.

5.6. The measures under item 5.5 shall apply when the shortage of funds expands to more than 70% of the margin required and all of the Client's open positions will be closed simultaneously.

5.7. The procedure and actions under items 5.5 and 5.6 in case of margin shortage are automatically set in the electronic trading platform and are activated with no human intervention, so there cannot be any subjective attitude or deception on the part of the company's employees.

5.8. The procedure and actions under items 5.5 and 5.6 are taken to protect the Client from the accumulation of large losses that would be expressed in a negative account balance. Thus, the Client shall avoid the assumption of additional liabilities exceeding the funds in their Account with the company.

5.9. The Client shall have the right to withdraw money from their Account up to the amount of the free money in their Account. No payments to third parties from the Client's money shall be allowed. Bank deposits from third parties to the Client's Account shall not be accepted either. The Client shall have the right to transfer money to the company's bank accounts only after accepting an agreement with the company and receiving a username and password to access the electronic trading platform.

5.10. If the balance /the amount/ in the client's trading account falls to zero or a negative number, the Company has the right to immediately close all open positions of the client, including the instruments which market is closed at the moment of the above event. In this case, the client agrees unconditionally to the price at which these positions will be closed. Positions with instruments, which market is closed, will be closed at the last price available before closing on the Company trading platform. - (2) “Take Profit Order” – it is used to close an open position at a certain profit. The platform may show you the target profit in the currency of your Account. This information is indicative and not guaranteed.

7.5.3. “Entry Order” – this order will be executed if the market price reaches the price specified in the order. The entry order is used to open a new position or to modify an existing open position. The execution price of the Entry Order is not guaranteed. This order may be executed at a different price, especially when the market is volatile or not liquid. There are two types of Entry Orders – a “Limit Order” and a “Stop Order”. The trading platform will automatically set the type of the order according to the current market price and the specified price.

8. CLIENT’S EXPENSES – INTERESTS, FEES, COMMISSIONS, PAYMENT.

8.1. In return for providing the services under this Agreement, the company shall receive from the Client payment, fees or commissions, described in detail in the company’s Trading Instrument Tables.

11.2. When trading with CFDs, the Client and the company explicitly agree on the following conditions:

- a) None of the Parties shall physically acquire the base instrument purchased by the Contract for Difference;
- b) None of the Parties shall be obliged to buy, sell or deliver the respective base instrument traded as a Contract for Difference.

11.3. Prices, interests and commissions:

11.3.1. The price of the Contract for Difference changes on a daily basis and is close or equal to the exchange price of the respective base instrument – stock, index or futures contract on an index.

11.3.2. In order to trade with CFDs, the Client must have sufficient free funds in their Account, as per the currently effective security percentages available on the website www.swissmain.com. The requirements of item 5.3 to 5.7 shall be valid for all open positions.

11.3.3. When the Client has opened a long position, they shall pay from their Account an interest for every day this position is open, according to the company's Trading Instrument Tables.

11.4. If a publicly traded company performs a split or reverse split of its stock, the Client shall be informed and agrees that the quantity of the CFDs in the Client's position will be increased or reduced.

The increase may be from 2 to 3 times greater than standard margin requirement for the said instrument.

11.6.2. The company may determine Restricted Price Zones in which the Client cannot place pending orders. Usually these are prices which are too close to or too far from the market price of an instrument. The company shall have the right to change those Restricted Price Zones ahead of important news events without having to notify the Client in advance.

11.7.3. The Client agrees that if they fail to close themselves the positions mentioned in item 11.7.2, then after the day indicated in the Rollover table, we will automatically transfer the Client's positions from the soon-to-expire contract to the contract expiring later in time.

11.7.4. The Client agrees that during the rollover as per item 11.7.3, their Account will be charged with the price difference between the old and the new contract. This price difference will be positive if the old contract was priced higher/lower than the new contract and the Client has a long/short position. Respectively, the price difference will be negative if the old contract was priced lower/higher than the new one and the Client's has a long/short position. This adjustment will appear in the Client's Account under Rollover Adjustment and it is aimed at offsetting the rollover effect so that it won't affect the real value of Your Equity. When calculating the price difference between the old and the new contract, the average 'buy' and 'sell' prices of both contracts will be taken into account.

11.7.5. The Client agrees that during the rollover under item 11.7.3, all Entry Orders and Associated Orders for that instrument may be cancelled.

11.7.6. In case of major fluctuations in the price of a futures contract, the company may change the rate of the collateral for this instrument and additional money may be requested from the Client. The change may enter into force immediately.

11.7.7. The company may determine Restricted Price Zones in which the Client cannot place pending orders.
